enue in the United States, which pays out a billion dollars yearly in farm aid. American farmers, with their capacity for high production, which has brought many a headache over surpluses to the United States government, would step up Brazilian wheat production in a short time, giving the government a good argument for regulating the baking industry. Brazil only a few years ago was burning its surplus coffee; if it should admit 200,000 ambitious American grain growers with their up-to-date machinery, the Brazilian populace may ultimately choke in the smoke of burning wheat.

"He has piled gigantic deficit on deficit and has spent with a reckless disregard of revenues and of achievements. Only a man brought up with no understanding of the value of money could have poured dollars into so many useless enterprises. Only a politician who stops at nothing to gain popular support could have indorsed so many devices for buying the votes of the electorate. Mr Roosevelt has doubled the national debt since he came to power and has continuously spent at least five dollars for every three dollars that was in the Treasury.'

Well, what is to be done to remedy that terribly expensive record? The obvious answer, of course, is sane economy. But the Herald Tribune declares correctly that the cold truth of the matter is that if ever this country is to have an economy movement the impetus and leadership must come from the White House, citing sang long years ago; Somebody the recent actions of the Senate in following starts a lawsuit And grabs off all the example of the president rather than abid- my dough." # Accepts Another Term, Gassaway, W. Va., March 26 (P)-About the only opposition the political horizon for P. G. Cutlip is a proposed constitutional amendment which would abolish justices of the peace, and the 86-year-old magistrate is going to run for reelection.

Cutlip, who first came into office in Otter District the year Grover Cleveland was elected president, thought that 56 years on the bench was long enough, and talked of retiring.

But his friends, many of them grandchildren of some of his first litigants, wouldn't listen. So the veteran Democrat has announced he would accept the post for another term.

Cutlip, after a careful study is convinced that the proposed amendment to set up summary courts, should be defeated. He emphasized that this belief was not engendered by his candidacy, but rather because he thinks the new system would prove expensive and inconvenient to the people.

A native of Braxton county, the sprightly squire has heard all manner of cases during his more than half-century tenure. He has no idea of the number of litigants who have come into his court. For 25 years he also performed the double duty of overseer of the poor in the district, and farmed most of the years he has been in office.

The modern funeral director is required to have scientific training in anatomy, human chemistry, demisurgery and sanitation. He is expected to be able to restore and preserve the natural life like apparance of those given to his care. He is entrusted with the responsibility of safe-guarding the public's health.

But in addition to his professional skill, the funeral director is expected to do everything possible to lighten the grief of those who remain. Through rendering sympathetic, understanding service we always strive to live up to our sacred responsibilities in the manner you would expect from an experienced, thoughtful friend.

Went Exploring After School Furnace Broke

A nine-year-old schoolboy who took advantage of a holiday to go "exploring" was killed yesterday in a sixty-foot plunge from the Welton tunnel cliff just across the Potomac from South Cumberland.

"He was there one second and the next he was gone," whispered 11year-old Clarence Northcraft, Jr. as he described how his chum, Andrew Jackson Lewis, fell from the steep cliff they were scaling with

The Lewis boy, an alert, active youngster, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Gerald Lewis, of 245 Offutt street. The Northcraft boy lives in the same South Cumberland neighborhood at 255 Elder

That was how both boys happened to go home together yesterday when the John Humbird school was dismissed. The furnace in the school broke down. The school officials decided it would be better to dismiss the pupils than run the risk of having them catch colds in unheated classrooms

Delighted over the accident that had resulted in a holiday, the two boys started for home. The sun was warm and bright. Both youngsters decided it was an ideal day for exploration. The precipitous cliff that can be seen from their homes seemed to answer their pur-They started out around

Cliff 120 Feet High

Before starting up the cliff, the two youngsters thoroughly explored the gloomy interior of the railroad tunnel. Then they climbed to the top of the trestle and started up the cliff, which is about 120 feet

The two boys had scrambled some sixty feet up the treacherous rock when the Lewis boy slipped and Young Northcraft, horror stamp-
